Yoga is a meditative process of self-discovery and liberation. It is a diverse collection of practices that aims to control the mind, recognize a detached witness consciousness, and free oneself from the cycle of birth and death.

It is a spiritual discipline that aims to achieve eternal peace and harmony between body and mind and soul. The very origin of the word speaks volumes. It aims to connect your mind and body and to help them work together in peace and as one.

It works on leading to the union of your consciousness to the universal consciousness. The person who experiences this unity and bond between nature and himself is said to have attained moksha (ultimate liberation).
